Flourless Black Bean Chocolate Cake (gluten-free!)

Simply the best black bean cake I've ever tried. This fudgy, tight-crumbed, soft cake will make up for all the black bean baking failures you've ever had. No one will believe there's a whole can of black beans in it!

Equipment

- 2 6" cake pans Other options: 8" or 9" cake pan, 8x8" or 9x9" pan

Ingredients

For the cake

- 1 15.5 oz can black beans, drained and rinsed* or 1.5 cups cooked black beans (~270-290g)
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar 150g
- 4 large eggs 200g
- 5 tbsp melted butter or oil of your choice (vegetable, canola, grapeseed, avocado, a mild olive oil or refined coconut oil all work) 70g
- 1 tbsp vanilla extract
- 5 tbsp cocoa (Dutch-process preferred) 26g
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 1/2 tsp baking soda

Instructions

Make the cake

1. Preheat oven to 350F. Grease and line 2 6" round cake pans with parchment paper.
2. In a high speed blender or food processor, puree the beans, sugar, oil, eggs and vanilla until completely smooth.
3. Add the cocoa powder, baking powder and baking soda directly to the blender and blend until smooth.
4. Divide batter equally into prepared pans and bake for 30-35 minutes, or until the top springs back and an inserted tester comes out clean with just a few crumbs. Let cool for 5 minutes before flipping the cake onto a cooling rack. Make the frosting as the cake cools completely. (I recommend this chocolate Greek yogurt frosting!)
